

Clamp Forklift Chain

Drum Clamps are attachments which are normally utilized in the chemical and petroleum industries. They were specifically intended for the secure handling of regular 55-gallon drums. These attachments greatly improve production since they could handle as much as 4 drums for each load.

Drum Clamps can also be utilized in the food processing and packaging business or anywhere there is need to store or handle drums. This kind of clamp enables the person operating it to grip the drums in a safe way for transport and can really increase operator productivity. While trying to handle drums with traditional lift truck forks, much instability happens during braking and cornering. This common problem could be handled safely and proficiently by using the Drum Clamp attachment instead.
